THEMIS SOLUTIONS ANNOUNCES LAUNCH OF CLIO
WEB-BASED PRACTICE MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

New Software as a Service (SaaS) Product is “Practice Management Simplified” for Solo Practitioners and Small Law Firms

June 26, 2008 – Los Angeles, CA – At LegalTech West Coast, Vancouver-based Themis Solutions Inc., announced the launch of Clio, a new practice management Software as a Service (SaaS) that is completely web-based. Clio includes a full suite of practice management tools specifically targeting the needs of solo practitioners and small law firms of up to 10 users.

Clio is a secure central online resource that eliminates the need for many specialized applications, incorporating the principal talents of each. Intuitive and easy to use, Clio provides time tracking, billing and reporting, client contact and document management, task scheduling, and business intelligence/performance metrics.

Clio Features and Highlights

Specifically, Clio incorporates the following essential services:

- Time Tracking: In a service-based industry, proper tracking of time is of utmost importance. Clio incorporates a detailed time management system that allows its users to track time by client, file, and task. Two separate clocks are launched by simply clicking the timer button. With Clio, timekeeping is effortless, reducing lost time and eliminating the frustration of paper timesheets.
- Billing and Reporting: Time reconciliation and bill generation is often the most tedious and neglected area of small law practices. Clio provides a simple interface that automates production of detailed time reports and client invoices. After capturing time and generating customized invoices, Clio follows up with outstanding bill reminders after 30 days. Also, with its integrated tracking system for trust funds and retainers, Clio satisfies many day-to-day accounting needs of solo and small practitioners.
- Client and Contact Management: Clio offers a robust client and contact management system that is linked to clearly displayed information on clients, matters and billings.
- Task Scheduling: Using Clio’s complete Ajax calendaring and reminder system, attorneys are notified of client meetings, court appointments, and important deadlines. Each appointment can be easily clicked and dragged onscreen, and the schedule can be viewed by day, week, or month.

- Document Management: Clio users securely access their documents over any internet connection, and can search for files based on various criteria. By maintaining several document versions simultaneously, Clio users can track document progress over time. Clio facilitates document sharing between attorneys and staff, and can also be used as an extranet system to grant clients file access as needed.
- Business Intelligence/Practice Performance Metrics: From a business intelligence standpoint, Clio ensures that its users meet their goals by tracking current, expected, and target billing figures. Solo practitioners and small firms can assess their productivity on a daily, weekly, or monthly basis.

Security

- External Security: Clio carefully safeguards access and storage of lawyers' information by using login password protection with bank-grade 256-bit SSL encryption. Data is backed up daily to a secure, offsite data center. Clio takes all available precautions to ensure that client data is safe and secure; its systems are regularly audited by a third party to ensure protection from known viruses and security exploits.
- Internal Security: Combining the convenience of the web with the security of a desktop application, Clio can filter search results to restrict access rights to certain files or client records.

Technical Specifications and Pricing

As a web-based product, Clio is operating system (OS) independent and can run on either PC or Macintosh computers. The system currently supports Internet Explorer 6.0 and 7.0, Mozilla Firefox 2.0, and Safari 3.0. Priced by monthly subscription, Clio costs $50.00 per month for each user license.
